

7. UJEDOWSKI's Son - FLEMING's attention was called to an intercepted cable between UJEDOWSKI's wife and Karlsruhe indicating that UJEDOWSKI's son had been AWOL from his ship overnight when the ship called at Cuba. FLEMING said UPHILL had picked this up from several sources including UJEDOWSKI's wife. FLEMING said it seemed highly possible that the SIS had contacted UJEDOWSKI's son when his ship called in Cuba and had kept him ashore overnight for discussions. FLEMING noted that as of the time UJEDOWSKI's son reached Cuba, the son had no idea that his father had been arrested for treason. FLEMING said one factor that made the SIS possibility seem real was that UJEDOWSKI's son, until the time of this misadventure, apparently had been a model crew member; it seemed strange that it should be in Cuba, of all places, where he should decide to go AWOL. FLEMING said he thought UJEDOWSKI's son would be back in the Fedrep early in January at which time it would be possible to find out just what had happened.
